Miller kernmantle restraint lanyards range

The Miller Fall Protection portfolio of products is extended with a new range of kernmantle restraint lanyards (EN354-EN 358) solutions. This new range of Miller kernmantle lanyards will complete the panel of products to fit all users' needs.

Restraint lanyards are used to restrict the worker's movement to prevent him reaching a location where a fall hazard exists.

These new products are ideal in the following sectors: construction, general industry and utilities.

Overview

Key Features

Features and benefits

More durable lanyard:

Manufactured from high quality Kernmantel ropes, these new lanyards have been submitted to abrasion tests which demonstrate that the new Miller kernmantel lanyards are 2 times more abrasion resistant than a standard rope.

Identification and categorisation :

- Easily identifiable from a distance: light green rope with black stripes enables supervisors to check that operators are using the correct lanyard type for their work environment.
- Facilitates the pre-use safety check: stitches highly visible (multicolor).

A wide range of products for every worker's situation:

This new range of Miller kernmantel lanyards offers a wide range to choose from. What ever the work situation, there is a lanyard to suit your needs with more than 30 options available.

- 2 lanyard variants: single and twin restraint lanyards
- Rope lengths: 1m, 1.5m, 2m
- Various karabiners (screw, twist, triple, double action) in different opening (from 18mm to 110mm) and materials (steel or aluminium).
